We, the Merrimackan staff, invite you to open our door to this community, Merrimack College, 1977-78.

Our book reflects many aspects one finds after passing through Merrimack's door: Seniors and seasons, Juniors and joys, Sophomores and seriousness, Freshman and friendliness, Administration and activities, Faculty and finals.

We hope you will enjoy the many facets of Merrimack College as seen through the doors of the 1978 Merrimackan.

All the doors that lead inward to the secret peace of the Most High, are doors outwards-out of self, out of smallness, out of wrong.

THEME 1, 214

To The Merrimack Community,

In April, 1977, I opened the door of the Yearbook office and met a new challange. Entering this door reminded me of the many other doors of Merrimack College, some of which I tried to open and some that I passed by. I thought of the many people who open doors, meet challanges and grow while on the other hand I also know those who don't open doors or meet challanges but choose to pass them by.

So I thought doors would be an appropriate theme. Some people found it hard to understand because Merrimack College is more than a door or doors. This is so. The doors represent an invitation to each of us to come on in and explore. And we had so many to choose from, for example the Yearbook, the Warrior, Merrimaction, the radio station. Different doors offered different things — friendship, seriousness, laughter, intimacy, learning boredom and many good times with some bad. Perhaps the most important thing behind these doors were the people, the Community of Merrimack. Each person represents a new door that we can open to friendship.

The doors of Merrimack College have opened to show us a world of experiences. The Merrimackan staff has participated in most of these events and we are pleased to present you a record of memories from 1977-78. We hope you can open those doors we were unable to portray through photography and we trust your memory will take you beyond just pictures to the doors you have opened.

Thank you to everyone who put work into this book; the list is long. I'd like to give special thanks to Mark, Karen, Dana, Jack, Lisa, Lori, Mrs. Lee, Diane, Fran, Andover House, and Guy Garon. The end, finally!!!

TRIBUTE TO A VERY REAL PERSON

People are of two kinds, and he Is the kind I'd like to be.
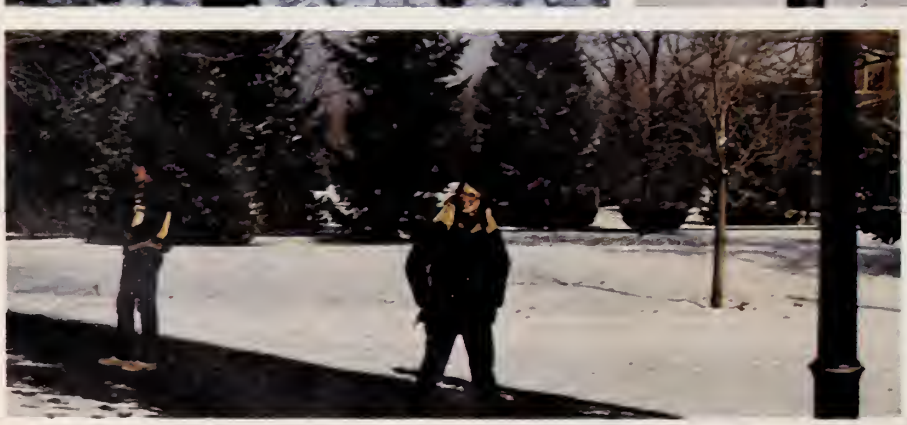
Some preach their virtues, and a few
Express their lives by what they do;
That sort is he. No flowery phrase
Wins friends for him. He isn't cheap
Or shallow, but his course runs deep,
And it is pure. You know the kind.
Not many in life you find
Whose deeds outrun their words so far
That more than what they seem, they are.

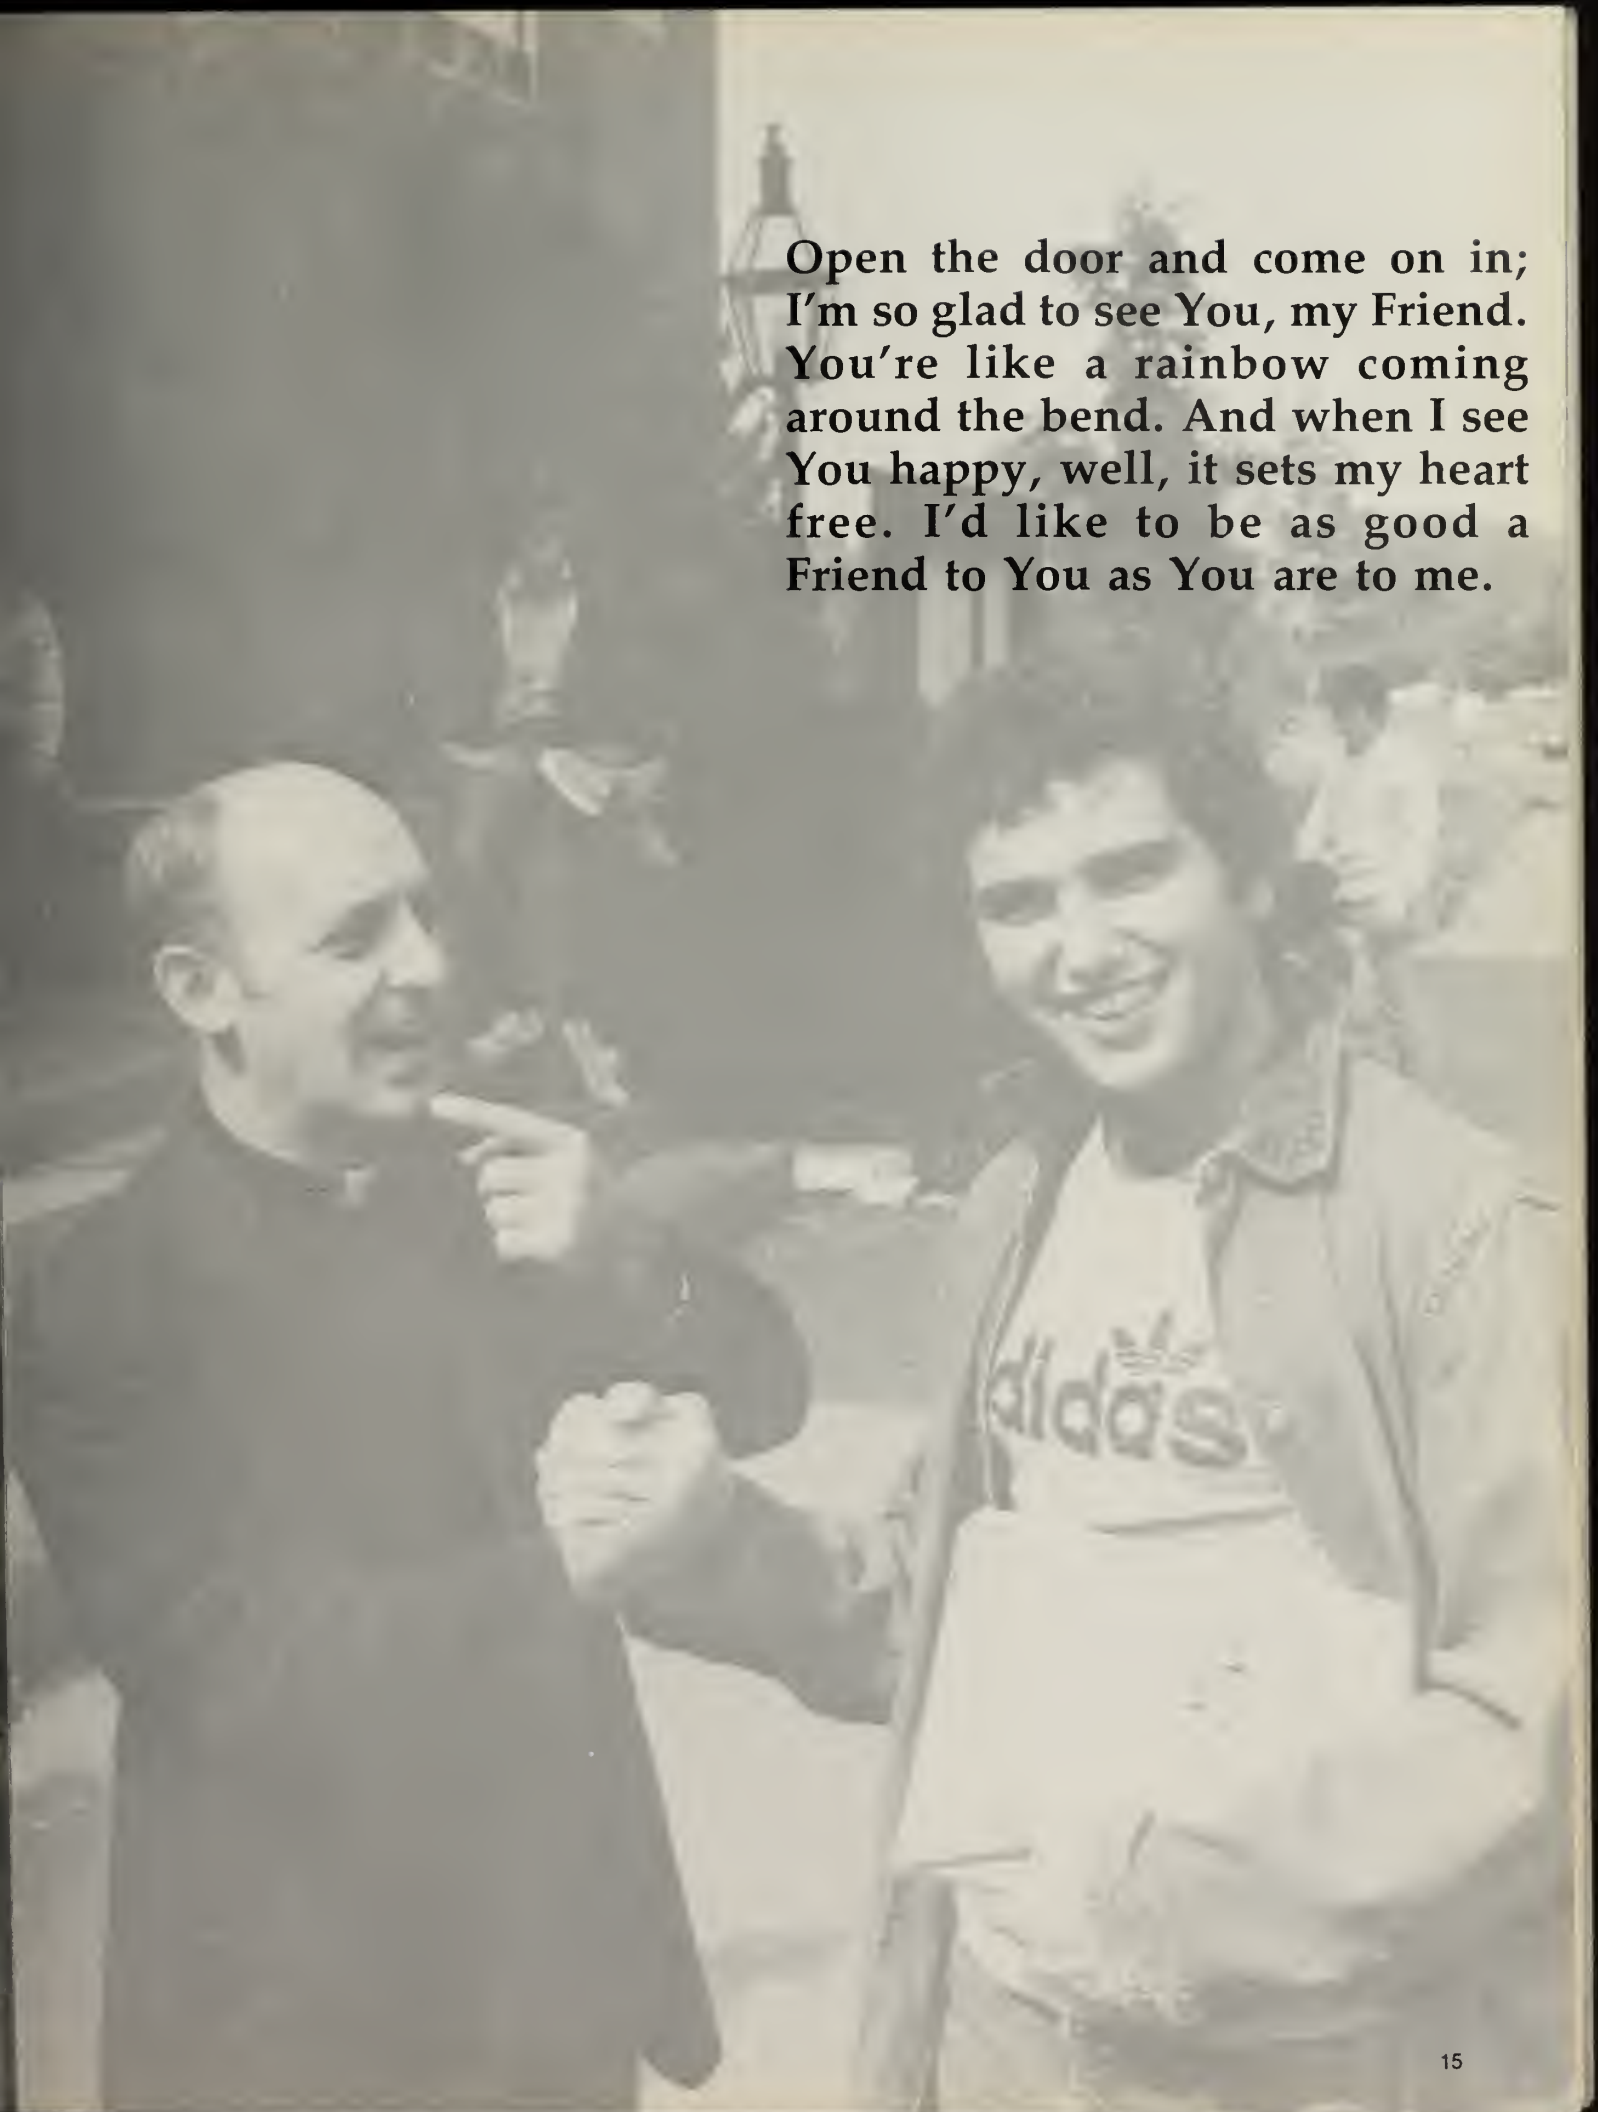
This book is dedicated to Father Jack O'Malley with gratitude for his consistent commitment to the students of Merrimack College. Father O'Malley has silently and sincerely given to the college community more in the past several years than we would ask for in a lifetime of administration . . . Our thanks are meant to cover this unyielding dedication from a man we know and love.

Open the door and come on in . . .



I'm so glad to see you . . .

. . . My friend.



Open the door and come on in; I'm so glad to see You, my Friend. You're like a rainbow coming around the bend. And when I see You happy, well, it sets my heart free. I'd like to be as good a Friend to You as You are to me.

BEER

I asked God for strength, that I might achieve
I was made weak, that I might learn humbly to obey . . .
I asked for health, that I might do greater things
I was given infirmity, that I might do better things . . .
I asked for riches, that I might be happy
I was given poverty that I might be wise . . .
I asked for power that I might have the praise of men
I was given weakness, that I might feel the need of God . . .
I asked for all things that I might enjoy life
I was given life, that I might enjoy all things . . .
I got nothing I asked for — but everything I had hoped for Almost despite myself, my unspoken prayers were answered
I am among men, most richly blessed!

Stopping by Woods on a Snowy Evening

Whose woods these are I think I know.
His house is in the village though;
He will not see me stopping here
To watch his woods fill with snow.

My little horse must think it queer to stop without a farmhouse here
Between the woods and frozen lake
The darkest evening of the year.

He gives his harness bells a shake to ask if there is some mistake.
The only other sound's the sweep
Of easy wind and downy flake.

The woods are lovely, dark and deep,
But I have promises to keep,
And miles to go before I sleep,
And miles to go before I sleep.

TRIVIA AFTER SNOW SCULPTURING

THE BLIZZARD OF '78

The National Weather Bureau announced that the official snowfall for the "Great Blizzard of '78" amounted to 27.1 inches. But that bare statistic hardly tells the story of the impact of the paralyzing snowstorm on Merrimack College and its students.

Needless to say, there was no class. If Governor Michael Dukakis had not banned all driving, the impossibility of clearning the roads and parking lots on campus would have made a schedule of classes impossible.

With no class and therefore no need for studying, for exams, and for note-taking, the resident students were left to their own devices. And what they did was turn this gift of nature into a joyous week — undeserved, serendipitous, splendid.

The snow itself set the mood. There was no traffic but foot traffic and that through mounds and drifts of snow. There were no sounds but the bubble of excited conversation, the lilt and burst of sudden laughter, and the yelps of pure pleasure.

To be sure, there was a fair amount of partying. Den Rock and McCracken's have never been so pleased with their weekly receipts. And there were other incidents that marred the restful, peaceful, and social days like two who were hurt leaping from the roofs of buildings into the inviting snowbanks.

Yet when the last car was rescued from rooftophigh snowdrifts, when the last of the Schlitz Light was drained, when the last stereo was turned off, when the last long and lingering conversation trailed away, we turned once again to the books and classes and teachers — renewed, refreshed and grateful for an unexpected but richly savored vacation that was the "Blizzard of '78."

Some people have a talent
For chasing clouds away
For painting rainbows
And launching dreams
Like kites in an endless sky . . .
For building sandcastles
That don't wash away . . .
For filling each day
With the magic of laughter,
And filling hearts
With beautiful memories . . .
Some people have a talent

For giving life a new and special

With the exception of baseball, which tends to show its age (as do Dr. Warren and Frank Collopy — two mainstays), most spring sports are very much alike in the 50's, 60's and 70's. The costumes, the serve, the forehand, are perrenials in an age of change.

DIVISION OF HUMANITIES

Our task as men is to find the few principles that will calm the infinite anguish of free souls.
We must mend
what has been torn apart, make justice imaginable again in a world so obviously unjust, give happiness a meaning once more to peoples poisoned
by the misery of the century.
Naturally,
it is a superhuman task.
But superhuman is the term for tasks men take a long time to accomplish,
that's all.

SENIORS!

May God bless and keep you always
May your wishes all come true,
May you always do for others
And let others do for you.
May you build a ladder to the stars
And climb on every rung,
And may you stay forever young.

May you grow up to be righteous
May you grow up to be true,
May you always know the truth
And see the light surrounding you.
May you always be courageous
Stand upright and be strong,
And may you stay forever young.

Forever young, forever young,
May you stay forever young.

May your hands always be busy
May your feet always be swift,
May you have a strong foundation
When the winds are changing shifts.
May your heart always be joyful
May your song always be sung,
And may you stay forever young.

Forever young, forever young,
May you stay forever young.

The love of friendship should be gratuitous. You ought not to have or to love a friend for what he will give you. If you love him for the reason that he will supply you with money or some other temporal favor, you love the gift rather than him. A friend should be loved freely for himself, and not for anything else.

— St. Augustine

How beautiful is youth!
How bright it gleams
With its illusions,
aspirations,
dreams!

Book of beginnings,
Story without end,
Each maid a heroine,
And each man
A friend!

Take yesterday's worries and sort them all out
And you'll wonder whatever you worried about.
Look back, at the cares that once furrowed your brow,
I fancy you'll smile at most of them now.
They seemed terrible then, but they really were not,
For once out of the woods, all the fears are forgot.

THE POWER OF LITTLE THINGS
The memory of a kindly word
For long gone by,
The fragrance of a fading flower
Sent lovingly,
The gleaming of a sudden smile
Or sudden tear,
The warm pressure of the hand,
The tone of cheer.
The note that only bears a verse
From God's own Word: —
Such tiny things we hardly count
As ministry,
The givers deeming they have shown
Scant sympathy;
But when the heart is overwrought,
Oh, who can tell
The power of such tiny things
To make it well!

I love you for what you are, but I love you yet more for what you are going to be.

I love you not so much for your realities as for your ideals. I pray for your desires that they may be great, rather than for your satisfactions, which may be so hazardously little.

A satisfied flower is one whose petals are about to fall. The most beautiful rose is one hardly more than a bud wherein the pangs and ecstasies of desire are working for larger and finer growth.

Not always shall you be what you are now.

You are going forward toward something great. I am on the way with you and therefore I love you.

Hold fast to dreams
For if dreams die

OFF CAMPUS LIVING

These are the people who dare to leave the security of the dorms and town houses to live in apartments. The disadvantages are few: having to cook, drive to class, and be your own linen service. The advantages, however, are many: being able to get away from campus, skip parietals, make your own parties, and eat good food just like mom's. Off campus living — fun for the daring.

MERRIMACK SURVIVES

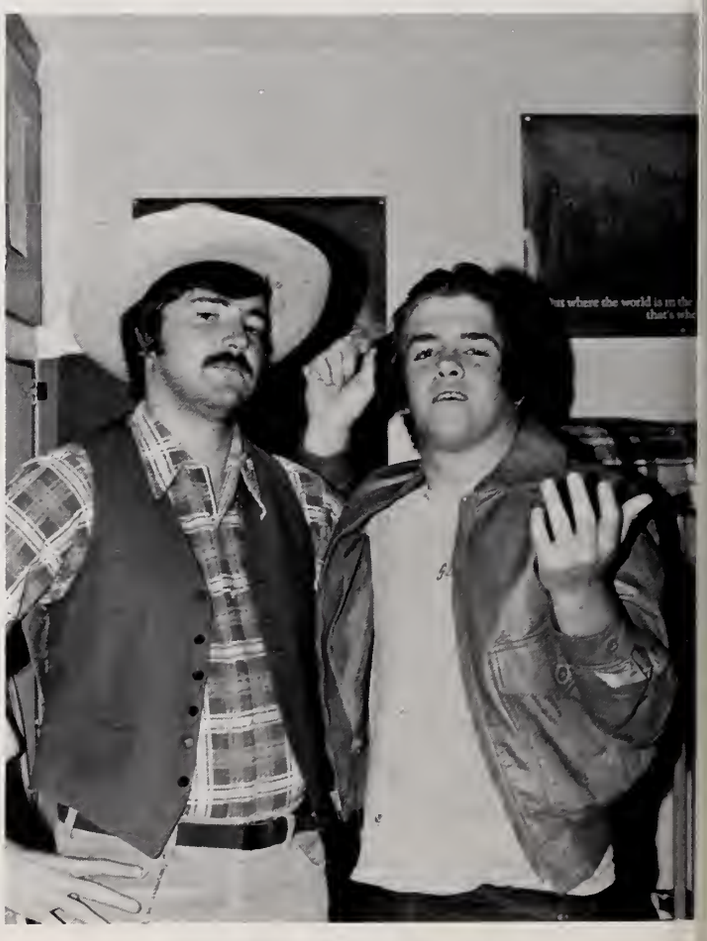
THE CLASS OF '81'

This could be my lucky day!

Anita Bryant, eat your heart out!

Stick em up!

Space . . . The Final Frontier.



Who says we ain't got no class?

ADIEU FAREWELL GOOD BYE

When P.T. Barnum discovered that the crowds of people who flocked to his exhibitions tended to keep milling around, he had a large, arrowed sign posted prominently near a doorway that read, This Way To The Egress. Those who passed through that door expecting to find another of Barnum's wonders were startled to find themselves all too suddenly standing on the sidewalk, a short distance from there they entered.

Like Barnum's clientelle, we, the seniors at Merrimack College, find ourselves at the point of departure, a short distance from where we began. To be sure, it was no huckster that brought us through the front entrance and up the drive the first time. Whatever our motivations, and they were varied, there was a serious intent behind them all. During the four years of our sojourn, we have seen and heard wonders. We too would like to stay, to mill around, to enjoy the companionship and the thrill of learning, but inevitably and inexorably the end has come and we must part.

There were times when college was a lark — breezing through the walkway or strolling down the breezeway was a pure pleasure. We were young and alive. We reveled in light and shade, the warmth and the chill, moments of quiet tenderness and periods of high excitement subdued and almost reverential hours of study and the sparkling give-and-take of a stimulating class. Yet muted at first but then with an insistence that would not be denied, we began to hear the refrain: "This is the end, this is the end, this is the end."

Hearing that refrain, we didn't want to believe. But sensing its truth, we resorted to mockery. On a fine spring day sitting and standing in front of the library, we would playfully wave good bye. Would that day ever come when we would have to wave good bye in earnest? Of course not. Or standing in the doorway of the Student Union Building, we would laugh, our eyes would sparkle, and we would salute our friends in jest and in high spirits. Would we ever have to salute them for a last time? Of course not. Why, we've only just begun.

As the days passed by, as the routine took its toll, the refrain became more urgent. It intruded on our consciousness. Perhaps it happened in a moment while we were standing in front of the post office. And suddenly the hundreds of doors became a metaphor. We had a future. We could no longer live for the present. Hundred of doors, hundreds of choices awaited us, but did we have the key? Did we have the mysterious combination of talent and education and faith and luck that would make our soon-to-be as rich and rewarding as the here-and-now?

It is curious the effect this insight had on each of us and all of us. We would oscillate between periods of total lassitude and total frenetic activity. There were times when we felt that this pendulum-like swing of moods was unbearable. And then we had another insight similar to the first — that the future we dreaded so anxiously was ours to control. With what we have been given, it is now a matter of willing. Whether our egress would be the wonder of wonders or merely pedestrian was ours to determine.

It was no accident that the first building we spied as we drove in the entranceway of the college was the Collegiate Church of Christ the Teacher. We could have gone to UMass or UConn, to Salem State or Kutztown State, to Wagner College or the Babson Institute. Rather we chose to come to Merrimack, a Catholic college. Perhaps with a parochial school in our background, we subscribed, dimly at least, to that ancient dictum, "Credo ut intelligam." "I believe that I might understand." Or, more likely, we chose Merrimack on the assumption that the education we would receive and the lives that we would lead would have that added spiritual and religious dimension.

Our assumption was borne out. We did indeed experience the influence of the Judaeo-Christian heritage in numerous ways. Through the direct ministrations of the Campus Ministry team, through our courses in Religious Studies, and through the faith atmosphere pervading the campus, subtle and ever-present, the best in us was challenged.

Not only were we challenged, but we hurled challenges. The greatest challenges that we voiced were to those who attempted to provide us with student and social services. There were times when our bumptious and fractious behavior brought worried frowns and late, late hours to dedicated members of the Student Personnel staff. Yet they endured and eventually prevailed, and so did we, the better for the experience.

Through it all our major preoccupation was the classroom and what transpired there. The swoop and thrust of a line of Milton's poetry in word and gesture was blended and meshed with problems, maps, slides, flow charts, diagrams, outlines, film and books, books, books. And by some mysterious, alchemic process, not fully understood perhaps even by the faculty, it all came together and we stood ready to be called to the ranks of educated men and women.

One thing that we do understand is that education is a paradox. On it we depended desperately for four years. And then it freed us. We had a need, the need was satisfied, and we have been liberated. The "big house" which used to loom so large now shrank into insignificance.

Now we gaze through the door through which we soon shall pass. It may look bleak and barren, but it is not. Over there to the left of the scrub pine, through the grass and beyond the hummock lies Eldorado.

We start to pass through the door. A mite disheveled, we allow ourselves one last lingering, affectionate glance. We bid fond farewell to spring afternoons outside the townhouses. We give a silent cheer to the hockey and basketball teams. We bid adieu to les professeurs. Auf Wiedersehen to foaming steins of beer. So long to student government, to socials, to our society. Bye-bye to warm beds, sleepy Saturday mornings, cozy chats. A warm hug to all those special people. Good bye to all.

Good bye.
